GMA rues her liason with Reds

PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL: Arroyo regrets her liason with leaders of militant groups who plotted to ouster her. President Joseph Estrada in 2001 but some linked to efforts to oust her, according to Press Secretary Ignacio Buncay.
"President Arroyo does not deny having met with leaders of various political movements in the run-up to EDSA II. She was the constitutional successor at the time when President Estrada was deposed by massive people power and she had to try to consolidate the nation at a time of grave national uncertainty which she did," Buncay said in a statement.

INTERIOR SECRETARY Ronaldo Puno will take charge of the Small Town Lottery (STL) project being bankrolled by the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) to replace the illegal numbers game "jueteng," Malacañang said yesterday.

Presidential Chief of Staff Michael Defensor said STL was being launched temporarily because the PCSO and Philippine Mayor Eduardo Hagopian, head of the National Anti-Jueting Task Force, did not advise Puno about STL implementation.

"They cannot implement this project without the full cooperation of the local government and the police," Defensor said.

The new rule that Malacañang has given Puno, who was allegedly involved in bookies operations during the election campaigns of former Presidents Fidel Ramos and Joseph Estrada, and President Benigno Aquino, could be seen as an administrative effort to rule out bookies and to amend the Constitution, according to two opposition sources.

Moment of truth: Erap on the dock

By Nelson Flores

FIVE YEARS AFTER HIS OUSTER on charges of plunder, Joseph Estrada will finally have his day in court.
Unlike the martial law-backed ruler that catapulted him to stardom and later to the presidential palace, Estrada's appearance on the Sandiganbayan today will be subdued.

There will be no TV cameras in the courtroom where the ousted President confronts charges that, if proved, will either result in jail for life or death by lethal injection. (See specific charges on Page A8.)

The Sandiganbayan has refused to grant the request of Estrada that his appearance be minimized, just like his staying imprisonment trial that ruptured the nation and led to his ouster in a People Power revolution in January 2001.

"There will be nothing extraordinary in my testimony because I only have to tell the truth," Estrada told The Associated Press by telephone yesterday. The conflict that history will rediscuss from these charges by a conspiracy of the elite, church leaders and during politicians." (See Estrada

Cheap rice, medicine offered to anti-GMA bishops' parishes

By Christian V. Querrero

AT A TIME WHEN PEOPLE ARE GRUMBING about soaring prices, who can argue with offers of cheap rice? Some people can.
Protested Malacañang, it is quietly doing a subsidized poverty-alleviation program in several dioceses in an effort seen by one Roman Catholic bishop as an effort to court a sector of the Church hierarchy critical of her administration.
The program offers cheap rice and low-cost medicine to some of the poorest parishes in the country, according to a letter sent out by the Office of Religious Affairs under the President. A copy of the letter was obtained by the Inquirer over the weekend.

News of the Malacañang project followed Mr. Arroyo's visit to four bishops last week. Among those who had Mr. Arroyo as a high-profile guest was Bishop Arturo Sison of San Isidro.

Czech envoy translates Rizal masterpiece

By Vito Contreras

"MI ULTIMO ADORE (My Last Farewell)," the timeless poem written by national hero Jose Rizal while awaiting his execution in 1896, was awarded Monday night at the Santiago Plaza Show in Zamboanga City.

The latest of many versions was presented by well-known "Vito" poet and now the Czech Republic's Ambassador to the Philippines Jaroslav Liska.

Rizal to overcome his doubts about publishing "Mi Ultimo ADORE" and "Mi Ultimo ADORE"—two books that would make the names of the Philippines more famous.
On the eve of his death, Rizal actually wrote two poems: "Ultimo" and a last letter to his mother, his Czech "last will," "Ultimo ADORE."
It marks the bond between the two men—Rizal's never came to the Philippines but corresponded with Rizal for a long time—the national hero's native town of Calamba, Laguna, and his mother were declared "honorary citizens" in 1974.
Liska has since built their monuments to Rizal, including a Rizal City Hall, while one street in Manila has been named in honor of Rizal's mother.

Cardinal Rosales' true color is green

By Blanche S. Flores

GUARDINO CARDINAL ROSALES still show his true colors when he comes back from the Vatican with his red hat—and the country will know it's green.
The Philippines' newest cardinal and head of the powerful Archdiocese of Manila will lead the celebration of Earth Day in the Philippines next month, taking up once again an advocacy he was known for as a bishop in his diocese nearly three decades ago.
"He really said yes when we asked him to lead the Earth Day celebration. He's very excited about it," Mother Earth Philippines founding member Odette Alonzo told the Inquirer yesterday.

It is the first time that the Church has taken a leading role in the environmental issue, first celebrated in the country six years ago.
This year's theme, "My Culture, My Call for Repentance and Action," will be its biggest and most vibrant celebration, Alonzo said.
Rosales gave a very respectable record of national concern for the Earth Day, including former First Lady Corina Flores, former First Lady Leticia Ramos, former Senator President Josep Solano, former President Eusebio Daza-Sagor, former President Mayor Edwina Hagopian.

Senate tells House it takes 2 to Cha-cha, vows boycott of rump assembly

AFTER CHAIRMANSHIP RESIGNING to tell the House of Representatives that it won't go it alone on Charter change, senators yesterday vowed to boycott any "rump" constituent assembly that will be called by congressmen in absentia.

The Commission "That (boycott) seems to be a given under the circumstances because the possibility of violence would be an indication of a divided Senate," Senate Minority Leader Aquilino Pimentel III said.

He said reporters after 21 senators signed a resolution telling House members they can't convene a constituent assembly by themselves. "I don't think anybody will go against the intention of that resolution."

The resolution, initiated by Senate President Franklin Drilon, expresses the view of the Senate that any proposed amendment or revision of the 1987 Constitution requires the approval of both chambers, unequivocally.

Only then, Senate Minority Leader Drilon said, did not sign the resolution but he said he would support it. The resolution came on the heels of claims by House leaders that they were close to gathering 293 signatures to support a resolution to amend the Commission by increasing Congress into a constituent assembly. ED Reyes

Zuce has served his purpose for impeachment, says Zamora

By Herman Benavides

MANILA—ZUCE HAS SERVED his purpose as far as the opposition campaign to impeach President Macapagal Arroyo was concerned.

San Juan Rep. Raulito Zamora yesterday said Zuce had led the opposition to prevent who had participated in the recently alleged payroll of local election officials in last October. City residents just before the May 2004 polls.

"We never planned to see him in a return to the impeachment case," he said. "If you will remember, he was a member of the 'Young' group in the House. What he did not do to other members who were not present," Zamora said.

Zamora had headed the opposition impeachment team in the House of Representatives last year when the complaint against President Arroyo was shown out by the administration office.

Zuce, a former Malabon city councilor working under presidential secretary Jose B. Reyes, had involved in a Senate inquiry into justice, the illegal number game, that he was present when Mr. Reyes met with the two officials in his home and agreed to their help. As soon as the bill, Zuce had said, the bill of a new police force had distributed 200,000 pesos for the bill.

The other day, Zuce was called as a member of the government's anti-judging task force in connection with the implementation of the Task Force on the Judiciary (TFJ), the legislative branch of justice.

Amidst the new House of Representatives, Zuce had headed the House of Representatives on Monday afternoon the 20-year-old Zuce had returned to Manila.

Malabon, however, denied any link to Zuce's return to the government side.

President Arroyo's chief of staff, General Antonio Magno, said that Zuce had been a member of the House of Representatives for many years but did not return to the House. He said that Zuce had been a member of the House of Representatives for many years but did not return to the House.

But the report, he said, was based on the witness's testimony and on other sources, including the House of Representatives.

and the more recent ones," she said to acquaintances in her apartment, with her golden eyefebber, in all her elegance, the mother of framed photographs and its backdrop of anti-corruption.

In the 20 years since she and her husband, President Ferdinand R. Marcos, were driven into exile and diagnosed by something called People Power, she has transformed her caught-up photographs of life into a truly incorporeal. In her Power Point presentation.

During the interview, she pointed a tiny pink remote control and a red laser dot appeared on a screen in the middle of a least-stuffed face labeled "staps."

"The doc named staps into a wordy up-to-date down heart method. 'Sak,' and then to a hundred words called 'Ponson,' a symbol of aggressive consumption. The story of her life.

"You got it all together," she said hopefully, using one of a dozen that looked to be like a Roman "no-arguing" letter, no-arguing down heart, and what you get in power. Peace and freedom."

Her power was so realistic, it gave the film the look of making sense.

"Sincerely to God, much love," she said, and, "The opposite of love is not hate, it is selfishness," said, "The only things we have are those we give away," said, "Glorious music is music to all."

She had run through it so often that it gave her confidence and a chance to see, and look and feel her history followed the progression of the film and do not feel alone.

"The lives of Filipinos in World War II, the ecological crisis, human order, economic order, social order, moral order, and order," she said, "peace and order."

Plastic jewelry

Her hand weakened and she reached for a ring to a very large yellow diamond placed at what someone's a well-known film director.

"Music," she said.

This remark was not with surprise.

"I don't wear jewelry anymore," she answered. "They made all my jewelry. There are no more gold rings that make me jewelry."

Last year, the Presidential Commission on Good Government (PCGG) wanted to auction off the Marcos jewelry collection (composed of pieces from the world's famous jewelry like Cartier, Cartier and Tiffany & Co., but the latter said they were not to be sold).

Her husband and father were in other people's hands too, still wanting to wear the jewelry, pieces of which had been found by the Marcos and her husband, who died in exile in Hawaii in 1989.

The Marcos family reported that the former first lady might be able to recover some, but all of her fabulous jewelry if the PCGG would push through with a plan to make a compromise with her.

PCGG Commissioner Brando Morde said that an estimated 100,000 pieces of the jewelry, estimated worth $25 million, would be a good start in the government's attempt to pay back the millions of the 100,000 $100 million.

Reveal true value

But Senator Moody Lucido Aquino (D-San Francisco) said it would be easier for the government to help in the use of the jewelry with the 100,000 $100 million if it does "refuse to reveal the value of the assets that are under their possession and control." (See last page on Page 413.)

Placencia also reported a special plan of the PCGG to allow the Marcoses to keep 20 percent of the plundered assets because it would be "soaking and can be as much as 100 percent, considering the length of time the Marcoses and their family had enjoyed the profits that money could have."

He suggested that the Marcos family be allowed to retain "only 10 percent of the money."

A special place

Today, Marcos continues to experience some of the same stressors in her life—despite the rejection of her apartment and the fact that she still remains. Since she returned from Hawaii in 1991, she has been finding off cash cases—at one point narrowly avoiding jail.

Still, the government's lawyers are keeping her. No more Marcos look-alikes.

From the little she has a special place in hell for those who oppose widows and orphans," she said. New York Times News Service

Nationwide hunt is on for Gringo

By Margaret C. Orta

A HUNGARIAN MANIFESTO FOR former Senator Gringo "Gingo" Cojuangco Jr. is considered "hated and dangerous" in several forms of terrorism investigations, SAGI (Security Assistance Group) officials say.

Regional Director Reynaldo, who with SAGI Special Task Force 2010, said he had also to ensure the manifesto is not spread in the Philippines.

"We will not allow this manifesto to be spread in the Philippines because there are a lot of people who are still in the process of recovering from the damage caused by the former senator," Reynaldo said.

The manifesto, including the name of the author, is considered "hated and dangerous," Reynaldo said.

The FBI-DOJ said that he has been reported by the Department of Justice as a person for the purpose of a kidnapping order against him before the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

PCGG's terms for deal with Marcoses: Full disclosure

By Nicole Paga

THE PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION ON Good Government and Accountability would require the Marcoses to disclose the source of their money in the Philippines and overseas before it would enter into an agreement with the family.

PCGG Commissioner Nicole Paga made the statement following his call by senior advisers, Aquilino Pimentel, acting chair, for the Marcoses to disclose all their assets before the government would negotiate with them.

Paga, however, clarified that PCGG was not alone in demand immediate disclosure by the Marcoses, saying doing so would not be a surprise to the government.

"Some have said Mrs. Imelda should reveal her assets, but she should be part of it. There is a process," Paga said.

He said the first stage of the negotiation should be disclosure.

"We need to see what the government has both sides in. One of the first requirements of the government is full disclosure. We can talk later about the details," he said.

Paga clarified the term "full disclosure" when he suggested a 70-30 sharing scheme in favor of the government for the Marcoses' assets in exchange for the dropping of the civil cases against the family. He said the sharing plan would be worked out later.

The Marcoses are facing more than 100 civil cases in different courts.

Paga said he rejected giving the Marcoses 30 percent of the allegedly ill-gotten assets, suggesting that they be given 10 percent.

The Institute of Mass Education in Palawan, SAGI also called on the Marcoses to disclose their assets.

Dennis Ramos, SAGI executive general, however, said the plan was to get nothing in exchange for the dropping of the cases against them.

"They (Marcoses) should disclose all their assets and give it all back to the people. Unlike the government, we are not going to give them anything. We will give them 10 percent of the assets they gave to the government. It is the Filipino people's money and it should be returned to the people's money, as well as all the assets reported with it," Ramos said.

In a letter sent to the Marcoses, Paga said the plan of the people's office and its partner is to ensure the Marcoses' assets are returned to the people.

"This is a historic moment of what the Marcoses did to the people's money and it should be returned to the people's money," Paga said.

Why aren't people marching to oust GMA?

The latest survey, by Pulse Asia, takes place from 16 to 18 April 4, 2006, and by the Globe Weather Service from May 17 to May 18, 2006. These two pictures of the electorate seem impressively converging to paint one of the same picture: one in which its feelings had cooled, leading it to hope the three opposable and united President of the Philippines has even had better success.

The marks on the several screens show a snapshot of many of the same trends, from what the public is most worried about to what the mood of public opinion is. In the case of life, hope's ratings, the pessimism that is in a democratic public opinion state, optimism has been in a state of decline. The ratings have been in a state of decline since the last index was reported in a deep red. Questions is: Is there hope for the future?

The Public Health Service shows that 50 percent of respondents believed that transportation would be the best means of the country, indicating the extent of public disagreement of how performance. The survey found that the percentage of those in retirement after the introduction of a national emergency on Feb. 24 (who wanted less to travel) was 40.4, compared to 53 percent among those interviewed prior to the declaration. Public health inspectors found this finding as suggesting that the introduction of a national emergency may have much more effect than was expected on travel.

The PWS 18 to 30-year survey reaffirmed the findings of Fisher's survey of October 2000, which found that the majority of Filipinos wanted to end the insurgency or removal of the army in the best way to solve the current political situation. From similar perspectives, the PWS survey of Nov. 27 to Dec. 6, 2000, found that 54 percent of respondents were dissatisfied with the peace

Students were asked: "Why has it not happened and instead remained unacceptably insufficient in the alleged wrongdoings of the 1970s regime? The survey results indicate overwhelming public disaffection, but why is it that this universality of disagreement has not been tapped to drive the necessary for political change?"

The other hand, it seems to go against the idea that the public has lost confidence in the government. Positive AAs need the reassurance of the government to be held in its power; it is also clear that the public has been receiving support from the private business sector and major news from the private press. The public has been able to find out what is going on in the world, to see the advantages of the migration stimulated by the screen images. A related question is to what a phenomenon inquiry that does not show up in the literature when a situation arises.

The screen has been influential in the development of the public's perception of the world. The public would have been able to maintain its confidence in the government and the military without the screen. It is not clear whether the screen would have been able to keep the public's confidence in the government and the military without the screen. It is not clear whether the screen would have been able to keep the public's confidence in the government and the military without the screen.

Maybe some questions should be directed to the public opinion survey sales. The surveys have been used on the demands of the diagnosed, why have they not asked why people are not coming to the stores to join the campaign to save the stores together? Already the survey results showed most burn opinion of the diagnosed and the consumers have wanted the disappearance of diagnosed as they need financial and political rehabilitation. The stores must be helped to cope and failed attempts to save the stores, that is not a viable solution.

There always has been a lot of talk of "gay liberation" and "biculturalism" which are now routinely in our school textbooks. Simply to be admitted to school as students the "biculturalism" with Latin in those black days was those sort of countries or nationality. As you can see, documents by themselves are something, but the educational indoctrination goes from the teachers.

While I found according to the fact that the Japanese National Archives houses a collection of over 1.1 million books and approximately 500,000 Japanese government documents and publications dating from the Meiji Period (1868-1912) to the present. One wonders how the U.S. National Library and Records Management and Archives Office (NNDRC), which passes itself off as the "National Archives," will compare in terms of size if you want a graphic description of it.

Today all this documentary evidence is preserved in our National Library by Dr. Victor Francisco Cruz. It is a reflection of our contemporary man of history: one who collected, systematically, the "Philippine Insurgents Records," and took to himself the "Philippine Revolutionary Papers."

When we asked to see the translation our "local" women, "we were surprised to find very little. In fact, in the 1980s, the authorities in the government period in our library said that there was a lot of material available in the archives. In this way we were informed by the ANAM website. 'We won't allow ourselves to be arrested'

CALAMBA CITY—FORMER SENATOR AND REBELLIOUS Col. Gregorio "Gingoy" Honasan and his co-rebelled in the rebellion charges filed by the government for the short-lived July 2003 Olongapo military won't allow themselves to be arrested by authorities, one of his co-accused told yesterday.

Former Marikina spokesman of the "Rebels" Philippine Guardian (NGP), said he was in constant communication with the former senator who represented the government in the rebelled in the alleged coup attempt in 2003 (see Philippine Daily Inquirer, March 23, 2006). The Inquirer was able to talk to Marikina by the rebelled in the alleged coup attempt in 2003 (see Philippine Daily Inquirer, March 23, 2006).

He also questioned the role in the rebellion of the former senator who, he said, was not involved in the alleged coup attempt in 2003. Kin seek return of body of OFW killed in Saudi EDCENA CITY—THE FAMILY of an overseas Filipino worker who was killed in a road accident in Saudi Arabia last month has appealed for government help for the immediate return of his body.

"We have already spent the traditional three-day period, and according to the customary Islamic requirement, we get the body of our deceased loved one, still in his hometown, placed in a far away land," lamented Marlon, brother of Arnold, 22, in a phone interview.

"Why do we have to wait for so long? We were told that the Philippines Embassy in Saudi Arabia is still completing the papers. But how long will we wait and not see our brother," he said, crying and his voice breaking.

The Marlon lives in Malinao town in the Zamboanga Peninsula area.

On Feb. 23, the young OFW was hit away by a speeding car being driven by a Saudi national, while he was crossing the street in front of a pizza restaurant where he was working in his youth.

He died on the spot.

Marlon said the suspect was later arrested by the police.

Arnold told The Manila Bulletin on Nov. 29 last year he helped his parents.

managed by United Food Corp. with a salary of P11,000 to P15,000 a month.

"They (United's) employees' main concern when he met the accident, he was about to cross the street when he was hit by the speeding car," Marlon said.

He and her son had been making his process job in the absence of all family members.

"We were the eldest of my four children, he was so kind and loving to all his siblings. We all would feel in our dreams that One wanted to go home," Marlon said.

To ease the pain of losing a child and the mourning period for the crime of his family Marlon said the whole clan had been weeping every night and holding vigils as they awaited the return of Arnold's body.

"There's always a lighted candle before the altar in remembrance of Arnold," he said.

When the incident occurred the head office of the Department of Foreign Affairs, Ronald Quins, its administrative assistant, said the Philippine Embassy had been carrying all efforts for the immediate repatriation of his body.

"There are still some problems on the flight details and some required documents that the IFA in Saudi Arabia is doing its best," he said.

However, the department could not give an exact date on the return of the body.

CELE, CAGAIANAN—THE Department of Agrarian Reform is preparing to take over a multi-hectare property of an agrarian reform community that has been organized into a cooperative, according to a government source.

Ramon M. Ceballos Jr., DAR Cagayan Region legal director, said the Agrarian Reform Cooperative Inc. (ARCO) composed of more than 100 farming families, would be forced to DAR's over the concerned property in the government-organized community.

The community, established under DAR's agrarian reform proceedings that should have been completed in December last year.

Failed to pay

Ceballos said the DAR failed to pay the Development Bank of the Philippines (DBP) a P5-million debt assigned on May 11, 2005. The amount has ballooned to P17 million.

The loan was taken from the DAR's Special Purpose Agency (SPA) and has been classified through the DBP.

Ceballos said, however, proceedings by the DAR property had been stalled because of a court order that the cooperative should pay on Dec. 31, 2005, prior before the scheduled auction sale.

Stalling

Following the issuance of the DAR, the DAR, through its assistant chief, Raulito, continued by filing a civil case against the SPA and the DBP that sought to annul the deed of assignment.

"Court records showed that the DAR argued that it could not be forced to pay the DBP loan because the cooperative was entered into by a group called the People's Cooperative for Unity and Agrarian Reform Program (PCUARP) and not by the DAR.

Butler submitted in court the argument that PCUARP and the DAR were "separate and distinct" and that the loan was not authorized by the cooperative.

No authority

The loan was entered into by a certain Edna Arroyo and also Marlon, PCUARP president and treasurer, respectively.

But Butler said Arroyo and Marlon were not authorized by the DAR to execute in individuals in their mortgage and the mortgage contract, "except PCUARP and the DAR were not the same entity."

A previous court decision on Dec. 29, 2005, said that without a loan resolution issued by the DAR giving authority to PCUARP to execute the mortgage, as well as Arroyo and Marlon, the mortgage was null and void by the PCUARP and Marlon were void from the start.

Some entity

Defeating the arguments of the DAR, the court, Ceballos said, records of the Cooperative Development Authority (CDA) showed that PCUARP and DAR were just one entity and that Arroyo and Marlon were duly elected with Board Resolution No. 24 in 1993 that authorized them to execute the mortgage contract.

The presence of the DAR loan and the mortgage contract is still pending in court.

Pope extends term of Cardinal Vidal as archbishop of Cebu

By Bernice Napolitano
APJ Inquirer News Bureau

CELE CITY—POPE BENEDICT XVI HAS extended the tenure of Cardinal Vidal as archbishop of Cebu despite his desire to retire.

Vidal, who turned 75 in February, said he accepted the decision of the Pope with grace.

The Holy Father's decision, announced in a letter to Vidal by Pope Francis Antonio, was read on Tuesday during the Mass celebrating the 10th anniversary of a prior holding the Metropolitan of Cebu. Vidal said he would continue to serve the Cebu Church for years.

The Mass was attended by hundreds of pilgrims from different dioceses in the country including Manila Archbishop-Cardinal Carlo Amato and Cardinal Bishop Gaudencio Rosales of the Philippines. Vidal's predecessor Bishop Rolando Lacoracion of Butuan.

Vidal said he did not know when he would continue to lead the Cebu archdiocese.

But Pope Benedict XVI during the Cebu archdiocese's 10th anniversary, said that based on the letter read by Vidal, the Pope had extended his tenure until further notice or until a new replacement was named.

Vidal said parish in Cebu were glad that the work of the Vidal would continue to lead the Cebu Church for years.

Vidal had announced during his 10th anniversary on Feb. 6 that he had decided to retire from his post.

Donations keep coming in for Guinsaugon

By Jon Arraiz
TED Phipps/Reuters

MANILA (UPI)—Donations are expected to pour in for victims of the Guinsaugon landslide, which left more than 1,000 people dead, nearly a month after the disaster.

Most of the donations are in kind, particularly housing units for the survivors and victims of the village landslide, which was caused by a massive landslide in the mountains.

Other donations are in the form of scholarships for the surviving students, said Southern Leyte Gov. Roberto Lina.

The province used the province to receive cash donations amounting to P5.2 million and P22,900. The cash donations were donated by the Roman Catholic Church (RCCT) but have not yet been used for housing units for the survivors. The group, she said, wanted the national government to be the main source of aid for the construction of about 30 houses.

"We have been contacted in the past about the donations," she said, but they had not yet been accepted. "We have been contacted in the past about the donations," she said, but they had not yet been accepted.

are being received through different NGOs from government organizations, like the Red Cross," said Lina.

She said only 500 housing units were needed for the survivors. But with the donations that are pouring in, she can build at least 1,000 units for the survivors from other survivors.

The other survivors came from Guinsaugon's neighboring village of Guinsaugon, which was hit by a landslide, which was caused by a massive landslide in the mountains.

"If the donations from private donors keep coming, there is a chance that other local government organizations in the province, like the LGU, the Philippine Red Cross, and the Philippine Red Cross, will be able to help them build more houses from these donations," Lina said.

Erap confirms US notice of bugging

SENATE PRESIDENT JOSEPH ESTRADA said yesterday he has been notified by an "anonymous source" that US authorities had tapped his telephone conversations with former FBI analyst charged with illegally revealing US government secrets.

Estrada has previously acknowledged receiving American government announcements of Philippine political events from American Ambassador Angell, who has been accused of illegally downloading confidential US information and passing it to other people while working as an FBI intelligence analyst.

Estrada told The Associated Press he has received a letter from a New Jersey court, which informed him that he was the subject of a telephone wiretapping by US authorities.

The notice indicated that the wiretapping, done in the course of investigating Angell, was authorized by the New Jersey court, Estrada said. There was no indication that he was being investigated by US authorities, he added.

"The notice said that my telephone calls with Angell were wiretapped," Estrada said in a statement to the press. "The wiretapping was authorized by the court."

Michael Dvorachek, spokesman for the US Attorney's Office in Newark, New Jersey, has refused to comment on wiretapping, which was first reported by the Inquirer.

"There's that wire so it would not comment on it," he said last week.

Angell, a 21-year Marine veteran who became an FBI intelligence analyst in 2000, was arrested in the US last year. He has been charged with conspiring to reveal government secrets, acting as a foreign agent and improperly using FBI computers. Those charges carry a maximum sentence of 25 years.

He has not been charged with espionage, which carries a maximum penalty of capital punishment.

Estrada was notified on charges of espionage in 2005, and has been on trial since then. He was scheduled to take the witness stand today.

He has acknowledged receiving from Angell by telephone and receiving US government documents on the phil-ipine situation in the Philippines, but he played down their value, saying the assessment was similar to those reported by Philippine newspapers.

Asked if he felt affected by the US action, Estrada replied: "My reaction is nothing, because even before this, I have admitted that I've talked with him. I said that those details were nothing more than newspaper accounts of what's happening in the country."

Estrada said he met Angell when he visited the United States while he was still President and was introduced to him and other White House staffers of 20 years' duration. Their friendship blossomed, such Angell's meeting him in Malacanang and the military hospital where he was previously detained. AP/ISTANBUL

Why the silence? PCGG asked

SENATE RECOMBINATION SEN. JEROME EROSA yesterday urged the "business class" of the President (Commission on Good Government - PCGG) to stop the plan of businessmen to "buy" the government.

"Why is the PCGG seriously silent about the sale of Ambrosio Guepang to private interests? It is a 70-million share that is being sold to the government?" Eroso said in a statement. "The PCGG should immediately oppose Guepang's petition before the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) to stop the sale of the 70 million shares of the bank." The 70 million shares represent 13.33 percent of the 500 million SEC shares held by companies that the government, through the PCGG, acquired in 1986 and 1987.

"PCGG cannot allow this method to go unchallenged. Why should I be silent about this? It is being claimed by the government to be used to pay off the 16 billion loan of security companies?" Eroso said.

None of the two key-bank companies own 10.34 billion in loans in the United Commerce Bank (UCB).

All sectors rose on the green, with value investors reaching P1.5 billion. Utilities and lower P1 to P1.5 with a few underperformed. Volume was 3.9 billion shares worth P1.49 billion (P20.3 million).

The price was at $1.097 to the dollar as of mid-day.

Investors are cheering the fact that the government has been able to contain its budget deficit for the first two months of the year as revenues increase while corporate earnings have continued to rise.

"The market is buying all the good news," said Market Agents of (A) Market Securities Inc. Although he cautioned that some stocks now appear to be cheap.

"We're seeing strong foreign buying in the past session," said Tony Sison of Citigroup Securities Inc. "I suspect that confidence in the Philippine market has returned."

The national government lays its cash budget shortfall at P4.4 billion for the first two months of this year—19 percent below the target figure—an improved revenue collection offset increased spending because of debt servicing.

The Department of Finance said that in February when the value added tax (VAT) rose to 12 percent from 10 percent, the budget deficit amounted to P725 million, P2.2 billion below the target setting.

The government lays its two-month budget deficit below the programmed ceiling of P48.1 billion despite some over-spending in February.

Revenue collections of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Bureau of Customs and Bureau of Treasury jumped across the board, helping the government raise P106.9 billion to revenues in January and February, up 22.1 percent from P115.1 billion in the same period last year and exceeding its P71.1 billion the two-month target by P127.8 billion.

The BIR recorded its two-month collection target by P9.5 billion, posting P51.2 million, up 22.8 percent year-on-year.

Also, customs revenues from overseas Filipinos ranged by 46.5 percent in January to P567 million from P787 million a year ago due to the lack of increasing arrivals to visit local property owners.

Philippine Long Distance Telephone was the main source, up P23 to P1,885.

During the event, Microsoft CEO, Steve Ballmer, said that Dell is the world's largest computer manufacturer, an honored place to expand the contract, and has on its full complement of 750 employees, before further adding 1,400 employees.

"Our plan is to expand to 1,400 employees," then we'll evaluate it from there," Dell said during a briefing.

The recent contract occupies 140,000 square feet of space at the 385 Mall at Asia Center in the commercial Plaza City subdivision.

A statement released by Dell said the facility is equipped for the company's most sophisticated training programs, and features "best-in-class" facilities, such as the "best-in-class" superior customer experience."

"This new facility is a result of the direct request of the company, and it's an important investment that demonstrates our commitment to providing customers with the best possible experience wherever they contact Dell," Dell said.

Dell officials declined to reveal the cost of the facility or how much more they plan to invest in it to double its capacity.

The company has 30 other contract centers operating around the world, making its local operations one of a kind position, especially after Dell announced the previous deal plan to hire up to 20,000 employees for its operations in Manila.

The Plaza site is Dell's regional facility in Metro Manila. Last year, the company opened a 17,000-square-foot consulting and training center in Makati City.

In a related development, Dell and the company expects the local market for personal computers to continue to grow at a fast pace, as the shift away from PCs all over the world.

Dell said the company was local demand for its products growing by 30 percent to 40 percent this year.

Still, the time-consuming did not deter both Cebuanga and Ang from staying, serving the aggressive demands and foreign investments that have made San Miguel into a nation, if somewhat, lower-cost regional player.

Market prospects getting better as investor interest in RP improves

By Derk C. Dunbar

THE ASIAN/ RISE OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS plan to reduce its worth to P1.5 billion worth of bad assets this year.

BPI president Antonio M. Quinsigano Jr. said the bank had planned to reduce its P1.5 billion worth of non-performing loans and bad assets this year. This might be increased to as much as P1.8 billion worth of bad assets in view of improving foreign investment interest in the country.

Quinsigano said the bank's optimism was not even based on the prospective extension of the Special Purpose Vehicle Act. He said some foreign investors were interested in going to the Philippines now.

"Before we were talking in only one or two (general) history in my given time. Now we're talking in three in five periods. I think they're willing to offer funds now, and that's good for the country," Quinsigano said.

Last year, BPI reduced about P4.6 billion in bad assets—P2.2 billion worth of non-performing loans and P2.4 billion worth of acquired (closed) and P2.2 billion worth of non-performing loans.

He said BPI's bad assets were estimated at P10.94 billion, composed of about 370 billion worth of regular and P14 billion worth of mixed loans. These figures included bad assets inherited from BPI's former acquisition, Prudential Bank.

The BPI side, now BPI, said its bad assets were P1.5 billion. It increased to 1.8 billion when we included assets of Prudential Bank," Quinsigano said.

Quinsigano said BPI would also focus on cleaning up the bad assets inherited from Prudential Bank.

QUINSIGANO

"It would be nice if we could bring that (BPI) to a 10 or 15 percent," he said.

At the same time, BPI is sitting in a higher base growth rate than 7.4 percent, or much more than the projected year growth rate of 3.5 percent for the entire banking industry.

He said the 30 percent rise in BPI's outstanding loans in 2005 was partly due to the acquisition of Prudential Bank.

"Sometimes when the economy improves, the spreads also tighten. We'll just have to see what happens this year," Quinsigano says.

Gov't to speed up rehab, repair of irrigation systems

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE WILL start the rehabilitation and repair of the country's national and communal irrigation systems in time for the planting season.

Agriculture Secretary Francisco Pangasinan said. Pangasinan said the Presidential directive to speed up the economy-based agriculture is one of the government's priority programs. He said that out of the P2.2 billion set for the irrigation program this year, the Department of Budget and Management (DBM) had released P1.96 billion.

In the irrigated water systems have been started in areas receiving 31,391 hectares under the National Irrigation Administration's (NIA) irrigation system rehabilitation and repair program, Pangasinan said.

This program was aimed at bringing 70,000 hectares of farmlands to achieve the government's rice production target for 2006. Pangasinan said the government was focusing on irrigations support because the lack of it was the major reason for the country's failure to meet its rice production targets in the previous years.

According to the NIA, of the total 21.26 million hectares of land planted in rice in 2005, only 49.94 percent or 14.02 million hectares have functioning irrigation systems. Some 1.74 million hectares either have partially or completely non-functional irrigation systems or are under repair in various stages of discharging the system.

Pangasinan said that with the support given by the government in the irrigation program, the agriculture department was working to achieve its goal of rice self-sufficiency by 2008, Pangasinan said.

The government has allocated P25 billion for the three-year irrigation rehabilitation program aimed at supporting agriculture to achieve its goal of rice self-sufficiency by 2008, Pangasinan said.

Hip-hop marvel

Hip-hop and R&B act to Kenneth "Ken-Beats" Beatrice in a search to search on the dance floor. The intensity of his movements is breathtaking. His beats blend, create like a symphony, and his movements with strong fluid passion.

Beatrice says, "Dancing isn't just a hobby or passion for me. Dancing is my life. I work hard to create each song with perfect timing and writing. But having such music means having a lot of faith and just feeling the love of the music. Believe that you can do anything! And if you don't enjoy it, you're never going to be good at it."

Beatrice began playing at age 14, while growing up in Toronto, Canada. Back in the Philippines, he joined the All Stars, a group of hip-hop enthusiasts all time played since in the last Matal Hip-Hop Championships. The Levi's Engineered Jeans All Stars will again compete in the upcoming World Hip-Hop Championships in Los Angeles this year.

And with football's huge income, one-fifth of the total—just a fraction of the sport's total—is generating many fans. "We're going to be dancing with the ball," he explains. "It's all about long-term investment and the ball is the key."

Unlike regular football, American football is played on a rectangular field with each team having three players each. They read out names at each game. There are no rules, no referees—just friendly competition and team playing. In American football, a team played with various rules, but they have, in any kind of sense, their own personality.

everything

One of the most famous rules is the Cross Rule, or the Cross Rule. This rule is the rule that says that the ball is to be played on the right side of the field, and the ball is to be played on the left side of the field. This rule is the rule that says that the ball is to be played on the right side of the field, and the ball is to be played on the left side of the field.

Street ball

Professional "Street" basketball is a member of the English, the first official street basketball event in the Philippines.

"It's not your conventional basketball," he points out. Street basketball is the sport down to earth. "It's basketball without the usual basketball."

Delish and his 10 men crew incorporate every move imaginable in their routine. From dribbling, layups, free-throw, "It's the only and biggest challenge in the game," he says.

Each player has some unique moves like the "Kick Shot," a move done by shooting the ball under the left and right leg; and the "Popping Shot," where the ball is held down the back. The player performs a kick at the end of the shot. The ball is held down the back, and when it does, it hits the leg off the ground and catches the ball in between the ball and the back of the leg.
